Dear elected representatives,

I am writing to you regarding the recent draft NPF.

I am a resident of Drogheda, Co. Louth since birth, Ireland's largest town.

My home town has a population of 43,000 people with a further 30,000 people who live within a 12km radius of Drogheda's town center.

I am baffled as to why in your draft NPF Drogheda has not been completely omitted, not mentioned once?

In my opinion, based on its population alone, it is a priority that Drogheda is given city status and is, with immediate effect, included within your Nation Planning Framework, a plan which will stratigically and economically map out the future development of towns countrywide for the next 20 years (2020 - 2040).

It is absolutely critical that Drogheda is included.

Yours sincerely,

Noreen Clarke,
