I am incensed that Drogheda has been left out of the Ireland 2040 plan as the biggest town in Ireland. Drogheda need city status immediately. To plan for the next 20 yrs without thought in terms of what the 83,000 people who live, work and consume in the greater Drogheda region is beyond belief. The shortsightedness of such a long term plan with regard to Drogheda is frankly disgusting. The thought processes around community development and city planning amongst our county councils and not least within the National Planning Framework body itself leave a lot to be desired. Please amend this atrocious oversight.
